Dear Madam

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst.

and in reply to inform you that I have this day forwarded to you by express of the 15th inst. a bill of exchange on London for the sum of £1000 which I enclose to Mrs. Becke together for 1/2 cent. They amounting 5132 notes after taking into the said exchange of 548.69. after paying the draft on the order of Washington it will be to the credit of your account with wife & daughter in the City of New York

I enclose to you (your uncle's name) a bill for the sum of $100.00 for which with the other drafts in support of the bill will be collected you will please find receipts under the name of Mrs. Becke in the direction which is on the parcel) I enclose to you also the bill of exchange on London for the sum of £1000.00 and my own bill for your present use and I expect it requires a great deal of attention and care to be taken but you have had some considerable experience and I should think your chances were very good. The last account I had from Washington they were in my favor but I am not sure of it

I am, Madam, your obedient servant

J. M. Becke
