Two Balloon Ascensions at Boston.—
Boston, July 8. The two balloon ascensions, postponed from the 4th instant on account of a high wind, took place between 1 and 2 o'clock this night from Boston common. The first to ascend was Admiral Farragut, containing only Mr. McCormick, the aeronaut, who safely descended in the town of Belmont. The second, the Star-Spanned Banner, took up Professor King, George A. Rogers, of Boston; W. H. French, of New York; John Leahy, of Boston; O. V. French, of Providence; and Master Frank King, son of the aeronaut. The party landed in Melrose about 8 o'clock, greatly delighted with their aerial trip.

Post

DEATH OF WASHINGTON SMITH.—At a meeting of the Republican Central Committee, held at their Headquarters on Wednesday evening, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:
Whereas, In the All-wise Providence of God, WASH-INGTON SMITH, for several years a member of this Committee, and identified with its interests of this City, for upward of a quarter of a century, holding various positions of public trust, has been, recently, removed from among us by death; therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Washington Smith, the members of the Republican Central Committee have lost an old associate and true friend; that advocates of sound Republican principles and policy, a true and faithful champion of the City of New York, a citizen of large benevolence and public spirit; and the State and Nation, an unswerving patriot, contributing freely to sustain the Government in its present trials in the suppression of the rebellion;
Resolved, That we tender to the family of the deceased our heartfelt sympathies for them, in this their sad bereavement;
Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes, and a copy be forwarded to the family of the deceased;
Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the Tribune, Times and Evening Post, and that this Committee attend the funeral in a body.

The Death of Booth the Assassin
Justice has overtaken the assassin of the President. The wretched murderer was killed in attempting to make his escape. His accomplice in the crime and in his flight, Harold, has been captured alive, and is now in Washington. Booth, it would seem, after the committal of the crime escaped eastward from Washington, through Charles and St. Marys counties. St. Marys County is the most southerly portion of Maryland, and is bounded by the Patuxent river and the Potomac, which forms a broad estuary at this point. The county is composed of level swampy land, and is indented in every direction by navigable creeks or inlets on the

Be Kind To Old Age! 1865

Be ever kind to those who bend
Beneath the weight of time;
For they were once like thee, my friend,
In blooming manhood's prime.
But bitter cares and weary years
Have borne their joys away;
Till naught remain but age and tears,
And waning dimidocy
Life's sweetest hours have hastened past,
Its bloom has faded now;
And dusky twilight deepens fast
Along the furrowed brow.
And soon the shagbared remnants
A narrow house receive;
For, one by one, they silent fall,
Like withered Autumn leaves.
Oh! then be kind, where'er thou art,
Nor deem such action vain;
Kind words can make the aged heart
Seem almost young again.
Cheer thou the weary pilgrim on
To Jesu's heavenly fold;
And may the same for thee be done,
When thou thyself art old.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY'S
PRIVATE
MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,
Sacramento st., bet. Montgomery,
Opposite the Pacific Mail Steamship Co's office,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Established in 1864, for the permanent cure of all private and chronic diseases, and for the suppression of quackery.

ATTENDING AND RESIDENT PHYSICIAN, L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D. late Physician to the 20th Regiment of Hungary, Chief Surgeon to the Military Hospital of Fenth, Hungary; late Lecturer on Diseases of Females and Children, and Honorary Member of the Philadelphia College of Medicine. — Particular attention paid to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women and children. Office Hours—from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. Communications strictly confidential. Permanent cure guaranteed, or no pay. Consultations by letter or otherwise, free of charge. Address, DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, San Francisco, California.

OF all diseases, the great first cause, Springs from neglect of Nature's laws TO THE AFFLICTED.

Suffer not when a cure is guaranteed in all stages of Secret Diseases—self-abuse, nervous debility, syphilis in all its stages, strictures, gleet, gravel, diabetes, diseases of the kidneys and bladder, mercurial rheumatism, scrofula, pains in the bones and ankles, diseases of the lungs, throat, nose and eyes, ulcers upon the body or limbs, cancer, dropsy, epileptic fits, St. Vitus' dance, and all diseases arising from a derangement of the sexual organs—such as nervous trembling, loss of memory, loss of power, general weakness, dimness of vision with watery spots appearing before the eyes, loss of sight, weakness, dyspepsia, liver disease, eruption upon the face, pain in the back and head, female irregularities, and all improper discharges of both sexes. It matters not from what cause the disease originated, however long standing or obstinate the case, recovery is certain, and in a shorter time than a permanent cure can be effected by any other treatment even after the disease has baffled the skill of eminent physicians, and resisted all their means of cure. The medicines prescribed are pleasant, without odor, entirely vegetable, causing no sickness, and free from mercury or bismuth. During 25 years of practice in Europe, the Atlantic States and California, I have rescued from the jaws of death many thousands who in the last stages of the above mentioned diseases had been given up to die by their physicians, which warrants me in promising to the afflicted who may place themselves under my care, a speedy and permanent cure. Private diseases are the greatest enemies to health, as they are the first cause of consumption, scrofula, and many other diseases, and should be a terror to the human family. A permanent cure is scarcely ever effected, a majority of the cases falling into the hands of the incompetent persons, who not only do not cure the disease, but ruin the constitution, and destroy the system with mercury. When the disease is already advanced, the treatment not only does not cure, but hastens death, and the victim wastes his time, and wastes his money, and becomes a burden to his family. Self-abuse is another formidable enemy to health for nothing else in the world, catalogue of human diseases causes so destructive a drain upon the system, drawing its thousands of victims through a few years of suffering down to an untimely grave. It destroys the nervous system, rapidly wastes away the energies of life, causes mental depression, prevents the proper development of the system, disqualifies for marriage, society, business, and all earthly happiness, and leaves the sufferer wretched in body and mind, predisposed to consumption and a train of evils more to be dreaded than death itself. With the full confidence I assure the unfortunate victims of self-abuse that permanent and speedy cure can be effected, and with the abandonment of ruinous practices, my patients can be restored to robust, vigorous health. Irregularities and all diseases of males and females treated on principles established by fifteen years of practice and sanctioned by the most remarkable cures. Medicines with full directions, sent to any part of the State, Oregon and Washington Territory, by patients communicating their symptoms by letter. All business correspondence strictly confidential. Address, DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, Medical Institute, Sacramento street, below Montgomery, opposite Pacific Mail Steamship Co.'s office, San Francisco.

REMARKABLE INSTANCE OF MEDICAL RELIEF.

Below we publish the certificate of one of the persons who have been cured of diseases, and who makes known his case and remedies, and his statement is authenticated by a Notary Public. The demands of society imperiously command its publicity, and we commend its perusal to the attention of the afflicted. The sufferer of the following case was a young man who was afflicted with a similar ailment, where a permanent relief of his sufferings may be obtained. He felt it his duty thus publicly to express his most sincere gratitude to Dr. L. J. Czapkay, for the permanent recovery of his health. He had been for some time suffering with a violent passion in youth, depressed in body and mind, unable to perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the ordinary avocations of life, though the advice of many physicians, who had recommended the use of all medicinal preparations, was of no avail. He had been for some time in a state of mental prostration, and his sufferings had become more alarming in their torture, and being told by one that his disease being principally confined to the brain, medicine would be of no consequence, I desisted from the use of medicine, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who, after examining my case, prescribed some medicine, which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. Encouraged by the result, I resolved to place myself immediately under his care, and by a strict adherence to all his directions and advice, my head became clear and my ideas collected, the constant

The late James T. Brady

We copy the following graceful tribute to Brady, from the "New York World."

Mr. Brady was well known by many of our citizens, who loved, honored and respected him for his noble traits of character. He was a high-souled kind-hearted man. His memory will be kept green in the hearts of all who knew him, long after his mortal body shall have mouldered into dust. There may be raised monuments of marble to perpetuate his virtues and good deeds, but the most enduring cenotaphs are the hearts of those who knew him intimately. With the extraordinary gifts of a powerful and graceful advocate, were combined the tenderness of a woman and simplicity of a child. His nature was overflowing with a broad and copious humanity. As a man, he was frank, true, and open hearted. As a friend, unselfish and constant. As a lawyer, incorruptible. The death of such a man is a public calamity, and as such, will be mourned. With truth can it be said, he was "A combination, and a form; indeed, Where every god did seem to set his seal, To give the world assurance of a man."

It is a consolation amidst all the sorrow that his death caused, to know that he had not a long and painful illness, but went to sleep like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

The earth that fell upon the mortal remains of James T. Brady, covers as true and noble a heart as ever throbbed in the breast of man! Peace be to his ashes, and eternal happiness to his soul!

"The good die first. And those whose hearts are dry as summers' dust, Burn to the socket."

"What a man desires in his youth," said Goethe, "that he has to fullness in his ripe age." Rarely has this profound truth (a

What the boy in the heart of the man thus said, and saying thus desired, was assuredly given in fullness to the man. He is mourned as he wished to be mourned. And it is a creditable and notable thing that in a metropolis which is perpetually misrepresented as the capital of Mammon and of Belial, not to speak of deities but little less disreputable than these; a man of parts and of power, who lived neither for ambition nor for gain, should have won for himself, by the simple humanity and kindliness of his nature, such a general consideration and esteem as New York never gives either to mere political distinction or to the shining vulgarity of wealth.

The good die first, and those whose hearts are dry as summer dust, burn to the socket.

"What a man desires in his youth," said Goethe, "that he has to fullness in his ripe age." Rarely has this profound truth (a truth too profound to be lightly apprehended) been more strikingly or touchingly illustrated than it yesterday was, in this City of New York, by the great concourse of people of all sorts and conditions in life, who came together at the Roman Catholic Cathedral, to pay the last tribute of human affection and respect to the memory of James T. Brady.

Mr. Brady was known and honored by his own profession as one of the most gifted and brilliant of advocates. He had made his mark, well, at least, if not always wisely, on his times, as a politician. For many years his

"Dear wit and gay rhetoric that had so well been taught her dazzling fence," had charmed and brightened the society in which he lived. Of fame he had won as much, probably, as he cared of; fortune as much, certainly, as he needed to win.

But the thousands (we speak literally) of honest mourners who yesterday bore him on their uplifted hearts to his last rest, cared but little for these things in their mourning. They came together not to praise the scholar, the lawyer, the orator, the wit, but to bury, with unaverted faces and tears unrepressed, the man. The loss which they lamented was the loss, not of brilliant faculties which commanded their admiration, but of a genial, kindly force which warmed and brightened their life. The social value of such a nature as that of James T. Brady can only be measured by such demonstrations as that which yesterday marked his funeral. The man who enriches the world with new inventions, who enlarges the bounds of knowledge, who fortifies the bulwarks of order, the author whose books are a fresh contribution to the happiness or to the progress of mankind, the statesman who guides the commonwealth safely through a perilous strait, the general who defeats its enemies, foreign or domestic—all of these write their titles to public recognition so clear that he who runs may read. They have their reward. But human life is not made up of public interests or of great events. To most of us the atmosphere in which we daily live and move and draw our unnoted breath is really of far more importance than all the crises and all the catastrophes of the times. And it is true, as Milton sings of the servants of God, that mourned as he wished to be mourned. And it is a creditable and notable thing that in a metropolis which is perpetually misrepresented as the capital of Mammon and of Belial, none speak of death but with a disreputable, that these a man of parts and of power, who lived neither for ambition nor for gain should have won to himself by the simple humanity and kindness of his nature, such a general consideration and esteem as New York never gives either to mere political distinction or to the trivial vulgarity of wealth.

not less true is it of the servants of man that they also serve who only live and love.
And it was for just such service as this that
New York, consciously or unconsciously, prized the generous and gracious citizen who has just passed away. The best influence which Mr. Brady exerted upon the community which now mourns him was singularly akin to that of a noble and warm-hearted boy in a great public school. He was a popular man, not because he courted popularity, but because he earned it. And he earned it simply because it was in him to earn it, because he really cared for those who gave it to him, because his sympathies were quick and ardent, because his helpfulness was cordial, because he was not only generous to those who needed his generosity, but graceful in being generous, graceful with that sweet considerate grace which comes, and can come alone, from the happy inward constitution of a man. It was not true of Mr. Brady, as Pope makes Homer tell us of the much-ought-for Ulysses, that "taught by time his heart had learned to glow
For others' good, and mark at others' woe."
